No Headache today

Another day, another mile,
same old road, same tired smile.
Steel and noise, the rhythm stays,
but I'm thinkin' clear today.

I've seen luck come and luck run out,
heard silence louder than any shout.
So I take one breath, don't rush my way,
yeah, I'm keepin' my head today.

No headache today, not rollin' the dice.

Some things ain't about courage,
they're about bein' wise.

No headache today, I'm thinkin' it through.

One simple decision that carries me through.

Ain't about fear, ain't about pride,
just knowin' when to draw the line.
I've learned enough from yesterday,
to choose my ground and stay.

You don't get told when it's too late,
no second shot, no rewind tape.
So I slow it down, I don't delay,
yeah, I'm protectin' my head today.

No headache today, no test of fate.

Some calls you make before it's too late.

No headache today, no price to pay.

Just one good choice
at the start of the day.

Nobody cheers when nothin' happens.
No headlines when you're okay.
But I'll take quiet over broken,
every single day.

No headache today, that's how I roll.

Clear in my mind,
steady in my soul.

No headache today, and tomorrow too.

I don't need luck
to make it through.

It's not about bein' tough.
It's about bein' smart enough.

No headache today.
